Janesville Liquor Men Plead to Judge Landis

120 ALLEGED WETS GIVEN HEARING IN FEDERAL COURT

CHICAGO JUDGE IN CHARGE: HUNDRED PLEAD NOT GUILTY.

CLASH OVER CAR U. S. and State Officers in Spirited Conflict Over Automobile.

For Associated Press.
Thomas F. Abbott, proprietor of the Bank saloon on South Main street, was among the scores of alleged prohibition violators summoned to appear before Federal Judge Kennesaw Mountain Landis at La Crosse today. He reported to have been there since the federal grand jury several weeks ago as a result of a raid on his place. Abbott was said to have gone to La Crosse today following summons served by Deputy U. S. Marshal William T. Totten.

Several others from Rock county, and a number from Green county, also failed to appear. It was reported from La Crosse this afternoon that Abbott entered a plea of not guilty.

La Crosse, Wis., Jan. 8.—With one hundred and twenty indictments returned by the grand jury and 57 cases growing out of the raids at Harley still to consider, Judge Kennesaw M. Landis opened a court here today with the largest calendar of alleged violations of the prohibition law prepared for a term of federal court in this district since the Volstead act went into effect.

For two weeks deputy U. S. marshals have been busy notifying indicted men and bondsmen to appear in court, Jan. 8. This morning it was said that at least 50 men would be asked today to plead guilty or not guilty to charges growing out of illegal liquor traffic in this district. Others will be arraigned later.

Court for Jan. 15.

Judge Landis has already designated Jan. 18 as the date for the calling of the petit jury and the commencement of the trial of cases in which pleas of not guilty are entered today. In a large room near the courthouse, a score of officials and hundreds of reporters, stockmen and other receptacles containing liquor of every conceivable description, taken in raids by prohibition officers.

Test Cases to Develop.

Test cases involving the sale of wine of pepsi and other medicines containing a high percentage of alcohol will develop in this term.

Judge Landis is expected to return to Chicago tonight.

Guilty and Not Guilty.

Over one hundred entered pleas of not guilty and had dates for their trials by the court between January 17 and 29.

A clash between federal and state court officers over the possession of two automobiles alleged to have been used in the transportation of liquor between Ashland and Superior, prompted Judge Landis to order the sheriff of Ashland and the chief of police of Superior brought before him on January 17. He explained why the cars had not turned over to the probation authorities.

Laudie Wants Car.

The situation developed when John Iverson was arraigned on the charge of transporting liquor. District Attorney A. C. Wolfe informed the court that he can used in transporting the liquor had been reprimanded through the state court at Superior, by one Jack Lavinsky.

"I want them to bring him back," said Judge Landis. "Send for the chief of police of Superior, Jack Lavinsky and the justice who gave Lavinsky possession of the car. We will see if we have any rights under the Volstead act to seize cars at Superior or any other place. I want them all here on January 17."

Auto Salesmen Called.

In another Superior case the court ordered that Allen Peck, an auto salesmen, who had been reprimanded in a liquor raid, be brought before him on January 17.

Judge Landis disposed of only two cases here, while Arthur M. Stoll, a man with a baby, pleaded guilty to a charge of sending an improper letter through the mails to a sister-in-law.

"You won't hear from this again, if you don't write any more letters like this," said Judge Landis, as he tore up the letter and threw the pieces in his waste-basket.

Fred Elsner, a 14-year-old boy residing here, was sentenced to the Green Bay reformatory for extorting two checks totaling $30, from letters, and cash.

Lord Mayor of Cork Released

Lord Mayor Daniel O'Callaghan, left, and Peter MacSwiney. O'Callaghan is wearing the ancient official chain of the lord mayor of Cork, the badge of office.

Daniel O'Callaghan, Terence MacSwiney's successor as lord mayor of Cork, who recently arrived in the U. S. as a stowaway, has been given his liberty by U. S. officials pending decision on his case. He was released on his word to report when summoned for hearing. O'Callaghan and Peter MacSwiney, brother of the man who voluntarily starved himself to death for Ireland's cause, came secretly to America recently without passports. Immigration officials are to decide whether both shall be deported. They are expected to testify before the committee of one hundred and twenty-four.

Brave Poor Working Man Turns Back on Fortune

Milwaukee, Jan. 8.—John Wagner, said to be a comparatively poor man, a molder in the West Milwaukee car shops, today turned his back on a fortune of $500,000, willed to him, he was notified, by a woman whose life he is reported to have saved 30 years ago.

"I am sure I am not the person referred to in the will. If I thought there was the remotest possibility that I am the man I certainly would be on the job."

Relatives and friends say they remember the incident of the saving but that Mr. Wagner suffered a sunstroke a few years after the deed which erased previous events from his memory.

CRIPPLED EDITOR LOST FOR MONTH RETURNS HOME

St. Louis, Jan. 8.—Jacques Vilard, crippled editor of "The Free Ace," who disappeared in Chicago December 7, last, arrived at his home here at 8:30 o'clock this morning. Mr. Vilard refused to make a statement. Detectives announced he had been detained in Chicago by kidnappers.

SISTER OF WOMAN HERE KILLS SELF ON OKLA. TRAIN

In a dispatch from Oklahoma City, the Gazette late today received information that a woman, Mrs. Mary Bell Spell, committed suicide enroute to California. Fred Spell, her husband, and a sister, Mrs. Charles White, are reported to have lived with her in Joplin, Mo. Charles died in 1916. At this residence brought out the fact Mrs. White closed her apartment on South Main street recently and left for the western coast. Nothing is known of either Mr. and Mrs. Spell.

Daughters of Isabella will put forth all efforts to establish a home for Catholic women and girls in this city within the year, it was decided at a recent meeting of the organization. The fund will in a large part, at least be raised this year by the Daughters, who hope to make the home a self-paying establishment in a few years time.

The plan proposed at the meeting was to obtain a building in charge of a mission in which rooms could be rented out to women and girls at a nominal rate. The home would also serve as a recreational center.

Miss Theresa Baker, grand regent of the Daughters of Isabella, said that the concern looks forward to finding in the new building because farmers have been inclined for the past few years to let their fences break down and they must necessarily be rebuilt. The farmers, she said, let their fences go because of high prices for labor and high costs for fencing.

Out of town men at the conference were E. B. Richardson, Ross III, S. K. Green, Sterling, and F. E. Birch, Cedar Falls, Ia.

Others were John Fleming, superintendent; and D. C. Harker, sales manager.

Salesmen are also starting on the road for the Hudson Manufacturing Co., makers of barn equipment and farm supplies.

DO YOU KNOW?

That Wisconsin was the first state to pay tribute to the men of field and furrow who have contributed untoldly to the communities, counties, and states.

These men have sought without hope of reward to convert the deserts of their farms, their homes, and their farming communities into centers of better farms, and better farming. By so doing they have contributed generously to the up-building of the rural life of their respective communities.

The self-sacrifice of these men has made possible the things we enjoy today and in anticipation of the important services which they have rendered agriculture, the University of Wisconsin annually recognizes a group of such public servants.

FINISH PLANS FOR BIG CONVENTION OF CONTRACTORS HERE

HUNDREDS FROM ALL PARTS OF STATE TO GATHER WEDNESDAY.

DAY.

LASTS THREE DAYS

Apollo Theater Chosen for Meetings—Big Banquet at "Y" Thursday Night.

Arrangements have been completed for the annual convention of the Master Builders of Wisconsin who will convene here Wednesday for their ninth annual convention. It promises to be the best and largest convention since its organization here 12 years ago. The sessions will continue three days.

Starting in Janesville with a dozen members in 1908, the organization now has a membership of more than 1,200 from all over the state. It owns and controls its own liability insurance company, and has established a record of being one of the foremost associations of its kind in the country.

Final arrangements for the convention were made at a meeting of committees last night which was attended by O. H. Ulbricht, Milwaukee, secretary of the association.

Dougherty Is Tommister.

William H. Dougherty, will be honored at the banquet which will be held at 6:30 Thursday evening at the Y. M. C. A.

F. E. Green is chairman of the banquet committee composed of H. E. Hathorn, Leo Ford, W. E. Weber and R. C. Weber.

The slide committee is composed of Joseph Denning, chairman; T. W. Wilcox, W. J. McGowan, R. O. Weber and O. J. Marcus.

A special train for the men attending the convention will leave Milwaukee at 1:15 Wednesday morning for Janesville, arriving here about 10:20 o'clock.

Meet at Apollo.

Registration of membership will take place Wednesday morning and the convention will convene for the first session at 1:30 at the Apollo theater.

Wednesday morning the officers of the association will meet in joint session with the directors of the Builders' Liability Mutual Insurance company which will be held at the Builders' Exchange, 25 West Milwaukee street. Reports of the officers of both organizations will be given and other business will be considered.

Officers of the association will attend a special performance at the Apollo theater Wednesday evening which will be featured by a special moving picture shown through the projector over long distance telephone from her home at Highland Park, Ill. "I will call on him at the jail, I will treat him kindly. But I will not kiss him at first. His mind is not pure enough for that now. But when that is pure—if he will be a good husband again—then I will kiss him. But never like I did once."

Deserted WIFE IS WILLING TO FORGIVE AND LOVE AGAIN

Milwaukee, Jan. 8.—Penniless and disowned by her only relative, a sister in Montreal, ordered to vacate her home by her landlord, Mrs. Ellen Harvey Telegas Author, wife of Pierre Paul Author, arrested in St. Louis with Mrs. Lillian Franzen, is willing to forgive and even "love him again."

"When he is brought back," she said to a Journal reporter over long distance telephone from her home at Highland Park, Ill., "I will call on him at the jail, I will treat him kindly. But I will not kiss him at first. His mind is not pure enough for that now. But when that is pure—if he will be a good husband again—then I will kiss him. But never like I did once."

HOTEL MAN MUST STAND TRIAL ON LIQUOR CHARGES

Frank Gentle, proprietor of the Hotel London, must stand trial here next Saturday on a charge of storing alcoholic beverages in the soft drink establishment run in connection with the hotel.

This was the decision of Judge H. L. Maxfield in municipal court today, following the hearing, at which Dist. Atty. S. G. Dunwiddie presented the state's evidence. Louis Avery will defend him.

The defendant retains his liberty on the same bail, $1,500. The trial is set for 10 a. m. Jan. 15.

E. Bloodgood, state prohibition commissioner, and Thomas Morrissey and Leslie St. Harts, Harry Jones testified for the defense today. The police officers told of finding the alleged liquor in the ice-box in the former bar-room. Bloodgood testified the stuff is not bonded whisky, but does it look like moonshine, but said it tested from 46 to 54 per cent alcohol from the four 3-ounce samples.

Thursdays Program.

The morning session on Thursday will be devoted to sectional meetings of the various trades. Matters which will be discussed include the eight hour law, the proposed rescinding of arbitration, the employers' insurance law and others of the 16 labor bills which are being prepared for presentation to the Wisconsin legislature.

At 6:30 Thursday evening, the banquet will be given at the Y. M. C. A. gymnasium. Chairman F. E. Green of the banquet committee is making elaborate arrangements. C. S. Whelan, director of the Apollo theater, will be in charge of the entertainment. The Apollo orchestra will furnish the music.

Friday Marks Close.

The closing session of the convention Friday will be used to complete any unfinished business and choose the city for the location of the 1922 convention. There is considerable rivalry among the various cities for the honor of entertaining the builders.

Clinton Church Gets Big Bequest

G. A. R. Post Here and Relatives Left Money by Rufus Ressegue.

Through the will of Rufus R. Ressegue, who died in this city, April 19, 1920, the Methodist church of Clinton receives the bulk of the property, the value of which is not given, which will be added to the endowment in the Rock county court.

The document provides the net income from the property and real estate shall be used to support the church and its institutions. The will, written in ironclad language, was signed by the testator and witnessed by his wife, Rufus Ressegue, Chicago, was awarded $2,000. The other heirs were awarded smaller amounts. The sum of $100 was set aside for the care of the burial lot of Mr. Ressegue, and his sister through the Clinton Cemetery association.

BERGER'S HEARING SET FOR MONDAY

R. J. Berger is in the county jail awaiting trial on a complaint which charges that he passed a $10 check on the Merchants' and Savings bank without having funds in the bank. He is to be arraigned Monday before Judge Landis of Madison.

The check was passed on or about December 5. The authorities declare that Berger had closed his account at the bank on January 17.

JAPS PROMISE TO LEAVE TEXAS; EX-SOLDIERS AID THEM TO RECOVER MONEY

BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.</p

WILSON GOES AHEAD IN ARMENIAN CASE

President Proceeds With Boundary Plans Despite Retirement.

By DAVID LAWRENCE.

Washington, Jan. 8.—President Wilson plans to go ahead with his work of mediation as between Armenia and the Turkish nationalists. So far as the information in official circles here is concerned, there is no basis for the report that the British and French governments are trying to discourage Mr. Wilson from proceeding with the task since he is to leave the presidency within the next six weeks. The suggestion was made by Prime Minister Lloyd George that Mr. Wilson resign as the American high commissioner at Constantinople to get him and his given time to the belief that the British government wanted to get the task of mediation into official channels since the American high commissioner is an officer of the department of state and as much would continue in office as possible. His acts would be those of the United States government.

But it is now officially explained that the prime minister's suggestion was made on Dec. 2 in a note to the council of the League of Nations before word reached the other side that Mr. Wilson had decided to appoint former Ambassador Henry Morgenthau. The note reads: "I have only a few days ago, having been rewarded through the council of the League, and thus delayed, given time to the belief that the suggestion was made as a supplementary rather than an alternative proposal and that there was no desire on the part of the prime minister to change the spirit of the decision of the league council to accept Mr. Wilson as mediator."

Serves Only as Individual. It is pointed out at the state department that the league council formally acknowledged Mr. Wilson's message in which he said he could not act for the government of the United States but only as a private individual and could not of course furnish troops or any other power to back the decisions he might make. Mr. Wilson, however, has given his personal support of all the movements on the counsel of the league so that his decisions would be backed up. The league in acknowledging Mr. Wilson's message replied that it would be glad to have him serve.

Europe Understands.

This exchange of messages officials here are proceeding on the theory that all is smooth and that the government is fully satisfied with the government's unique position in which President Wilson is placed by reason of his retirement from office on March 4 by which time of course hardly a beginning could be made in the task of mediation. It is understood that for the time being at least Mr. Morgenthau will represent the press in the negotiations between the Armenians and Turkish nationalists will pay his own expenses though no doubt the league of nations will subsequently reimburse him.

It is not improbable that Mr. Wilson may ask the next administration to continue the work of mediation if the matter requires governmental machinery and cannot be handled as a personal affair though this is not expected. There have been many instances in which distinguished statesmen and jurists have been requested to act as mediators in international disputes and their governments have been in no way involved. It is the reliance of both sides in the fairness of the individual rather than the physical help of his government which most determines the success of his efforts.

Approves Mediation.

The president's decision to become mediator was approved pretty generally by the American press irrespective of party on the ground that anything that might be done to help the cause of the Armenian people who have suffered so much would be a step toward solving the eastern problems here. American missionaries have labored so long to stimulate the processes of civilization.

METHODIST-PASTOR ANNOUNCES SERIES OF FIVE SERMONS

The Rev. Franklin P. Lewis, pastor of the Methodist church, will begin tomorrow morning a series of sermons on "Christian Duty" to be given on the following five Sunday mornings. The subjects will be as follows: "The Christian's Duty to Himself," "The Christian's Duty to His Home," "The Christian's Duty to His Church," "The Christian's Duty to the World," "The Christian's Duty to God."

Rev. Mr. Lewis says: "This is an age that dates the word duty, but moral obligations must be revived and some things besides ease and a good time must be taught. If the modern world is to be kept out of the ditch, the series of sermons will deal with a Christian's obligations and touch life at the various points of contact realized in a modern world."

C. C. To Talk Formation of Members' Forum at Meeting Monday Night

KLEIN TO MAKE RACE FOR MAYOR?

Man Who Ran Against Welsh in 1919 Is Noncommittal on Matter.

To permit a larger participation by the 800 members of the local Chamber of Commerce in the question of forming a chamber forum will be taken up at the bi-weekly meeting to be held at the Y. M. C. A. This has been decided by the steering committee of that chamber as a substitute for that night because the General Wood meeting has been postponed until January 24.

It was further decided to hold the forum on the evening instead of at noon and to hold it at the Y. M. C. A. The second meeting each month will be held at one of the hotels at noon as heretofore.

Will Explain Matters.

The organizing forum, it is hoped that each member of the chamber will be given a greater voice in the affairs of the body. It was voted at the meeting to have a forum after Stephen Bolles, chairman of the steering committee, should serve as chairman of the forum.

Fellowship Committee will consist of eight members. Its duty is to assist the forum in securing good attendance at all meetings of the forum. Members of this committee should serve for three months.

Entertainment Committee: This committee should consist of approximately six members. Its duty is to make all meetings interesting by arranging for special music or entertainments to take place on the program previous to the open meeting. Members of this committee should serve for a period of three months.

A Few Remarks.

Rules of parliamentary procedure contained in Robert's Rules of Order were recommended. In addition, the following special regulations defining the forum will be suggested: "1. No meeting of the forum alone can put the Chamber of Commerce on record for or against any particular project. The province of the forum is to publicly discuss and comment subjects which come before the forum in relation to the Board of Directors. If the forum disagrees with the Chamber of Commerce doing for Janesville? Is the Chamber of Commerce doing for Janesville?"

A forum, as explained by L. O. Holman, manager of the chamber, is a meeting of the Chamber of Commerce to which the membership shall be invited for the purpose of publicly discussing subjects of vital interest to the community and for carrying out an announced program. Only those subjects chosen by the body of members at a previous meeting and the program arranged shall be considered.

Purpose To Get Opinions.

The purpose of the forum is to give each individual an opportunity to voice his opinion upon the subjects being discussed, or to bring to the attention of the membership subjects which he thinks should be discussed or projects in which he believes the Chamber of Commerce should be interested." According to Mr. Holman, the forum justifies itself if it serves its purpose and is successful in inspiring the membership of the Chamber of Commerce and the public in general to think about the civic welfare and progress and secure definite and intelligent public action.

"Both sides of every subject considered at a meeting of the forum shall be fairly discussed. The forum shall name the person or persons whom it desires to make appear at a presentation on one side of a subject and after the formal presentation is made limited time may be given to others in the audience who desire to add further ideas to either side."

Plan 4 Committees.

Meetings of the forum will be conducted under rules that are to be voted Monday. Four standing committees will be suggested at the same time to be set up for the approval of the membership.

Steering Committee: This committee is already named and consists of nine members. It is the creative committee. Its duty is to initiate activities, to investigate projects which the forum selects for discussion at open meetings to bring into the forum recommendation of an opportunity to discuss it."

SITE NEAR CITY FOR NEW PLANT

TAKE UP Y. W. C. A. PLAN NEXT WEEK

Property located within less than a half-mile of the northwesterly limits of Janesville has been bought as a site for the spark plug factory contemplated by George T. Simmons, route 8. It was first announced the site was near Edgerton. The property was bought from Ole Knutson. It adjoins the Knipsheld property on the Janesville-Bergencon road, which is Mr. Simmons' proposed construction of the first unit will be started in the spring as soon as weather will permit. Enlargement of activities is made necessary on account of steadily increasing business, he says. He is the sole owner of the plug and has made all patent applications. His father, S. Simmons, deceased, was not a partner in the business.

GIRL SUES PASTOR FOR BREACH OF PROMISE

BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.

PATERSON, N. J., Jan. 8.—A warrant for the arrest of the Rev. Compeling Daniel, former pastor of the First Netherlands Reformed church of Paterson, on the charge of violating the Mann act, was issued Friday by United States Commissioner J. A. DeLaney.

The charge against the pastor resulted from an investigation of his alleged elopement on Nov. 12 with Miss Trina Haunenberg, a member of his congregation. They were away temporarily during part of which time, it is alleged, they lived together in New York city, Buffalo, and other places.

Recently they returned to Paterson, the pastor to his wife and family and Miss Haunenberg to her parents. The girl has brought an action for $10,000 damages against the Rev. Daniel, alleging breach of promise to marry.

BIG MEETING FOR NEAR EAST PLANNED

All Parts of County to be Represented Here Next Saturday.

Miss M. Kelley of the Near East Relief organization will speak at a big county meeting at the local "Y" at 2 o'clock next Saturday afternoon.

Miss Kelley was formerly of the state university. She went to the Near East to do war relief work and decided to return to give her life to work among these people. She had many thrilling war experiences which not only show the great privations of these people, but the cruelty of the terrible Turk, but they show also the splendid worth of the people of this part of the world. The public is invited to hear her.

Organizations are especially urged to be represented at this meeting. Miss Kelley will also speak next Sunday morning and afternoon, in the morning at one of the churches and in the afternoon at a mass meeting for all. The county organization is here and funds will be gathered for the Near East after her visit.

ZANIAS TALKS ON SHOW CENSORSHIP

Manager Willing to Cooperate for Clean Plays—Resents Women's Plan.

Recommendation that the Federation of Women's clubs with the city officials confer with the managers and operators of local theatres if they seek to improve the moral tone of shows was made today by James Zanias, manager of the Apollo.

"I resent any plan to have the Women's Federation send a woman chosen from among their number to censor the shows," said Mr. Zanias. "How would you like to have anyone come in and tell you how to run your business?"

Has Tried High Type.

"In the first place, I am trying to put on vaudeville and pictures that the masses desire. I have sought to bring the higher type of show here, but the audience never even applauded. I do not believe that any one whom the Federation may send would be competent to judge what the majority want. It would require some one of great broadness who thoroughly understands the tastes of all classes. What such a woman might recommend may be entirely displeasing to others."

Mr. Zanias stated that he can get singing and instrumental acts just as cheaply as what he is presenting because such actors are not in so much demand.

Welcomes Suggestions.

"Let these people who want to censor the shows, cooperate with us and come to us and tell us what they want. If they seek merely to eliminate suggestiveness, I shall listen to them. But if they are going to try to control the artistic quality of the shows, then they will be interfering with my business and I will not stand for it. I would better close up the theatre entirely."

Referring to the moving pictures.

Mr. Zanias had this to say:

"How can they hope to censor the movies which are already approved by the National Board of Censorship before we even see them? To do that they would be interfering with the national laws."

No One Capable.

There is no one here capable of deciding the amusement appetite of everybody, according to Zanias. He suggests that such a delegation as he recommends visit the theatres and what it does not and it appraise is greater for any suggestion that might creep in the delegation make a statement to the public condemning it for approving such acting.

"What would I do if a censor appointed by the women disapproved an act? If I cut it out, I would have to pay for it just the same. Whenever you particularly offensive acting is put on, I order that the actor refrain from doing it the next time it appears on the stage. If that is what the women would like me to continue to do, I shall be glad to aid them."

Efforts to locate L. C. Hensler, manager of the Myers and the Beverly, to get his viewpoint were futile today.

GIRLS MAKE PLANS FOR BENEFIT SHOW

For the purpose of raising a fund for a local Y. W. C. A., a production entitled "A Musical Comedy" is to be presented by the girls and women of the city, beginning for arrangements to be held at 7:30 o'clock Tuesday evening in Library hall.

All clubs and organizations are asked to send at least one representative. Aside from those who will be needed to take part in the production many will be needed to assist in costumes and in suggesting scenes for the play. The given calls for a large number who can sing, dance, or play musical instruments.

Arrangements are being made by Madame Elbridge Field, Frank Sutherland, Paul Owen, and the Misses Erna Tonn, Florence Snyder, Evelyn Kalvelage, and Pauline Calen.

WOODMEN INSTALL OFFICERS FOR 1921

Woodmen of the World installed the following officers last evening at the meeting held in the Spanish-American War Veterans' Hall: Fred Cole, council lieutenant; Otto Johnson, adjutant lieutenant; Chris Johnson, watchman; H. P. Murdoch, banker; Bert Hill, captain of the drill team; Edward Turner, sentry; H. D. Downs, clerk; E. H. Krueger, trustee. Thirty-five members were served a meal after the installation, which was in charge of T. L. Harper, state deputy.

OBITUARY

Mrs. Barbara Wells.
Mrs. Barbara Wells, 73, died at 8 o'clock this morning at the home of her daughter, Mrs. E. Clin. Galena, Ill., former resident of this town, who is survived by three children, one daughter, Mrs. Olin; two sons, Oscar Wells, Madison, and Norton Wells, Orlerville.

The body will be brought to this city for burial. Services will be held at 1:30 o'clock Monday afternoon at the Whaley funeral parlors and interment will be in Oak Hill cemetery.

Mrs. Lucinda J. Clemons, widow of the late Samuel J. Clemons, died at her residence, 423 Corneille street, Friday evening.

She was born July 22, 1884, near Akron, O., coming to this city with her parents, Almon and Margaret Ruggles, in the spring of 1886. She had resided here continuously in the early 50's; she taught school in the country district of Rock county.

Lucinda J. Ruggles was united in September 1887 with Samuel J. Clemons.

Five children were born to them, Frederick L. Ernest, E. Cora Co., who survive her; Eugene M. and Franklin E. Clemons died in childhood. She is also survived by her two grand children, Cora L. and Virginia G. Clemons.

She was a devout member of the First Congregational church in this city, entering May 6, 1911.

Services will be held from the residence at 2:30 p.m. Monday. Rev. Charles Scribner of the congregation at church, will officiate.

Welcomes Suggestions.

LANDIS HEARS CASES OF RUM VIOLATORS

Installation of officers of Rock River Encampment No. 3, I. O. O. F. took place at the lodge rooms Friday night. District Deputy Grand Chief Fred H. Koeblin officiated, assisted by Grand Deputies George Wetterling, Charles Wilkert, Albert Neff, A. C. Parish and James A. Fathers.

The encampment is now the largest in the state having 297 members. The past term is reported as most successful. Officers installed were: Chas Rockwell, chief Patriarch; Francis J. Blair, high priest; T. L. Mannion, recording, secretary; Charles Chaudhury, scribe; F. H. Kiehl, treasurer.

The Patriarchal degree was conferred upon six candidates and at the closing of all ceremonies Cigars and refreshments were served.

50 JUNIORS HAVE DANCE IN GYM

The first post-vacation event was held at the high school last night, it being the party given by the Junior "B" class for its members. The party, which was confined to the class alone, was attended by about 50. The girls were decked in blue and white school colors. Games were played the first part of the evening and dancing was enjoyed later; a four piece orchestra, made up of members of the class, playing. Several members of the faculty attended.

HIKERS

BY FREDERIC J. HASKIN

Washington, D. C., Jan. 8.—A man and his wife recently crossed the continent on foot, thus adding their names to the long list of those who have done thefeat, and showing that the healthy art of traveling under your own power is still alive, despite the jitneys and street cars and all the other things that carry us.

Long-distance walking really constitutes man's chief claim to physical eminence in the world. Although the fact is not generally known and very seldom demonstrated, a man can out-travel on his own feet almost any other mammal. George Wilson, an English professional walker, did 750 miles in 15 days, and Weston, the famous American pedestrian, in his last trip across the continent when he was 72 years old, averaged about 40 miles a day and did 72 miles in one day toward the end, just to show, as he said, that there was no ill-feeling.

Now there are few horses that can carry you 40 miles a day and keep it up for many days, and a loose horse living on grass as he goes along cannot do as much as a grain-fed horse under a saddle. Indeed, the ability of a good man to out-travel a good horse was often demonstrated in the West a quarter of a century ago, when men used to catch mustangs by walking them down. They simply kept the horses moving day after day, not allowing them enough time to eat or sleep, and finally were able to walk up and rope the horses without difficulty.

Man is by nature a roving animal, and it is by a long, slow process of change that he has become a creature who lives in one spot most of the time, and is hauled from place to place in vehicles. He was designed for long and continuous roaming on his own feet, and no doubt the desire of this function is the source of many of his ills. At least, the hiker's claim that walking is a cure for rheumatism. He was badly crippled by rheumatism at one time and unable to walk more than a block. Then he went into training for his transcontinental hike, and left his rheumatism somewhere in the road.

No doubt if we were not too lazy to walk, all of us who are still fairly sound organically and have the use of both legs could walk ourselves into health and keep ourselves there. It is a prime cure for constipation, which is the source of about half the troubles of civilized man, and it insures large doses of fresh air, the lack of which is the source of most of his other ills.

But walking is a habit. If you have it, you will walk in spite of everything, and if you haven't it, it takes a good deal of effort to get started. Most of us, too, think that if we walk a mile or two a day we are doing well; but as a matter of fact that is not enough to do any good. Ten miles is only a fair day's walk, and five is the least that will do much for your health. And if you aspire to be considered a walker you should step off your five miles in an hour and a half at the most. A five mile walk two or three times a week to keep in form, and a 20 or 25 mile walk on the week-end is about right for a modest beginning, according to the best authorities.

We can look for a good year in Janesville. There is every indication and it has been so officially given out that the Tractor Company will be operated at a gradually increased production and with other industries going at even moderate speed there is promise of employment for all our resident labor, and therefore good business for the merchants and a stimulation of activity generally.

There is a general feeling of optimism in the east, and it is spreading through the west; where stagnation in the movement of farm crops has been the leading factor in depression.

It is to be regretted that George Hull, of the town of Johnstown, has seen it advisable for private reasons, to resign the presidency of the Wisconsin Farm Bureau Federation. Since Mr. Hull accepted the presidency the membership in this great business organization has largely increased and its power for good has been greatly emphasized.

WHY THERE IS A GREAT SURPLUS OF FOODSTUFFS.

One of the reasons for the stagnation in the market for farm products, in fact the most important factor, is found in the figures on foreign trade for 1919 compared with 1920.

Exports of foodstuffs from the United States in the first eleven months of 1919 exceeded the imports of foodstuffs by $1,388,025,124. Exports of foodstuffs from the United States in the first eleven months of 1920 exceeded the imports by only $124,525,740, or less than one-tenth the excess of 1919. The exports of foodstuffs in 1920 decreased, as compared with 1919, from $2,168,476,000 to $1,854,321,657—a drop of $613,954,900. The imports of foodstuffs increased in the same eleven months from $1,070,451,433 to $1,719,995,017—a rise of $649,544,434. This increase of $649,544,434 in food imports, with the decrease of $613,954,000 in food exports during the same time, means an adverse net change of $1,263,400-$64 in eleven short months.

Much of this is due to the inability of Europe to buy, much is due to the rate of exchange by which foreign producers profited greatly by the higher value of the American dollar. This is the problem confronting congress, and the purpose of the tariff legislation—to correct the discrepancy.

Desire for better train service on the Milwaukee road from Platteville east seems to be backed up now by real action in all the cities and towns along the line. Janesville should join these points with a strong effort to obtain real service. This city is the logical trading place for that great and splendid territory. It should be made easy to come to Janesville, and equally as convenient to return home.

"GET IT DONE." We have started a great many things in Janesville, and the big thing in the next year, is to get them done. Finish each job.

There's the hotel—it should be built. It has laid in a dormant condition for many months. If we cannot build a million dollar or a half million dollar hotel, we may erect a structure that will cost within the means of the city.

There's the stock pavilion. It is a necessity. The farmers who want to come to the county seat for meetings have no place to go.

Finish the high school. It has a good start. What we need now is a "ready to go" organization so that the minute the legal requirements have been compiled with and the money is available the school can be built. We are in dire need of it and we have labor here to whom we should give the employment.

Speed up the park and playground plans and do something for the people this summer on those lines.

Complete the home for the girls who are employed in Janesville.

And let us open the spring with the camps for tourists who will come through Janesville. County boards and municipalities are doing something on this line in other sections of the state. They are convinced that it is a good investment.

There is a big program for improvements of streets and sewers this year. It will take the best management there is to expand the money with the greatest good to the people.

Naturally there can be no progress if the city

THE COMMONER

Want to walk life's bumpy way,
Want to hear what people say,
An' to know 'em through and through,
Know the good an' bad they do,
Know their failures an' their joys—
Just like younger girls an' boys—
Living out their time of play,
In a friendly sort of way.

Grown' up an' growin' old,
Shouldn't make us strange an' cold;
There's no reason I can see
Why the boy I used to be,
Shouldn't follow right along
With his love of mirth an' song;
Wasn't over-proud back then,
Why be over-pride with me?

Want to walk along the street,
Friend to everyone I meet,
Don't like growin' for money;
From the fields of yesterday,
Or to feel that I'm too great,
To be jennin' on my gate;
Just to pass the time o' day
With the folks who come my way.

Let me know 'em one an' all,
Rich an' poor an' all the small;
For the simple ones I know,
Let me share their thoughts an' hear
All their troubles year by year,
An' I'll learn from them the things
That don't reach the ears of kings.

Who's Who Today

FRANK B. WILLIS.

FRANK BARTLETT WILLIS, republican senator-elect from Ohio, probably will be appointed to succeed Senator Hardling immediately after the latter's resignation, and will even hold public office, as Willis is looked upon as a coming young man in the ranks of Ohio's republicanism.

Willis was born in Lewis Center, Delaware, December 23, 1871. After attending district and high schools at Galesburg, Illinois, he attended Northwestern University at Evanston in 1890, graduating in 1892 and becoming immediately thereafter an instructor in political economy, civil government, United States history and geometry.

His political successes have been due to no mere chance more than to his connection with the Ada institution for a legion of former rebels organized to help him win his subversive fight and has stood by him ever since.

The interest of Willis in politics began in the early '90s. He served in the house of representatives of the Ohio general assembly from 1900 through 1903. In 1908 he went to Congress from the Eighth Ohio district, serving in the lower house of the national body for three terms.

In 1914 he left congress to become the nominee of the republicans for governor, and was elected. Renominated in 1916, he was defeated by the man he had beaten in 1914, Gov. James Cox.

Willis is tall and heavy build, a powerful speaker with a voice that is strong and carrying.

He was a delegate to the republican national convention in 1916, and made the speech that placed in nomination Theodore G. Bilbo of Mississippi, an ardent advocate of the "old fashioned" William McKinley protective tariff.

The candidate is married and has one daughter, Miss Helen Willis. His home is at Delaware.

Willis was born in Lewis Center, Delaware, December 23, 1871. After attending district and high schools at Galesburg,

Illinois, he attended Northwestern University at Evanston in 1890, graduating in 1892 and becoming immediately thereafter an instructor in political economy, civil government, United States history and geometry.

His political successes have been due to no mere chance more than to his connection with the Ada institution for a legion of former rebels organized to help him win his subversive fight and has stood by him ever since.

The interest of Willis in politics began in the early '90s. He served in the house of representatives of the Ohio general assembly from 1900 through 1903. In 1908 he went to Congress from the Eighth Ohio district, serving in the lower house of the national body for three terms.

In 1914 he left congress to become the nominee of the republicans for governor, and was elected. Renominated in 1916, he was defeated by the man he had beaten in 1914, Gov. James Cox.

Willis is tall and heavy build, a powerful speaker with a voice that is strong and carrying.

He was a delegate to the republican national convention in 1916, and made the speech that placed in nomination Theodore G. Bilbo of Mississippi, an ardent advocate of the "old fashioned" William McKinley protective tariff.

The candidate is married and has one daughter, Miss Helen Willis. His home is at Delaware.

FRANK B. WILLIS.

FRANK B. WILLIS, republican senator-elect from Ohio, probably will be appointed to succeed Senator Hardling immediately after the latter's resignation, and will even hold public office, as Willis is looked upon as a coming young man in the ranks of Ohio's republicanism.

A SWEETHEART AT THIRTY

The Story of a Woman's Transformation

BY MARION RUBINCAM

CHAPTER XI BUD'S NEW FRIEND

The weeks ran along through the early spring and brought with them new interests and new ideas. I was becoming a little cleverer with my needle by this time, and I could follow more easily the inspirations that Helen gave me.

I made up a spring and summer wardrobe for Violet and myself. I found that the cost was really very little—the sorge suit which we made so painlessly the year before, back in the country, I recut into a modish fashion and sent away to be tailored by a good-natured little Jew in a basement tailoring establishment.

Dainty blouses and such were made from old garments of material, and cut from the lengths of cotton goods cherished for years by Esther and packed away for us in the old-fashioned trunk we brought to our city home.

"In making my own clothes, I kept to Helen's suggestion. In style I made them sophisticated, simple and very simple, with always some one newfangled touch about each dress that kept it from being ordinary. It took lots of time, but fortunately I had nothing to do but study ways to improve myself."

And I kept up all the other things—the detailed care of my hair, coaxing back some of its youth and color and lustre; the careful cleansing and stimulation of my complexion, which softened and cleared and lost some of the finer network of lines. I began to attract a great deal of attention to our diet too. Helen made a scientific study of this in connection with her restaurant. I discovered that we in the country, growing quantities of fresh vegetables and such things on our place, lived on a diet of soft dough which would have killed us with dyspepsia had we not worked as hard as we did. So I made up salads and cooked fruit and used whole wheat and bran lavishly in baking and saw even Violet's skin grow clearer, and my own gradually become fresh and even pretty.

Violet was happier now. Of course her happiness lay with Bud, and Bud was a model young man, I suppose. He was a bit of a come-up, and I think occasionally he even grumbled a little in stocks; but he went out but rarely on the wild parties Violet objected to.

"You're perfectly right," I heard him tell her one evening. "I am doing better work at the office, and may even get another raise this summer."

Violet smiled at him. She was one of those girls who can refrain from rubbing in a triumph.

"The boss has several times sent me on special errands for him," Bud went on. "And yesterday we met going down in the elevator, and what do you think? We went out to lunch together."

"Oh, how splendid! Where?" I asked. She was thinking at once of the social life of the town, and made an attempt to speak. Bud was over to speak. He was feeling a little awkward, but very much pleased with himself.

"This is Mr. Meade," he said, rather importantly, and with a boyish desire to impress us. "He's my boss, you know. This is Miss Enid Hayes and her niece, Violet Hayes, Mr. Meade's wife."

We shook hands, and they sat down at our table.

"I've lived in New York years and never saw Greenwich Village," Mr. Meade explained. "George here said she lived near it and I asked him to pilot me around some of the show places." He looked about him, interested in some of the curious sights standing around us.

"After dinner will you go with me with George and myself, to some of these remarkable little restaurants?" he asked.

I smiled and nodded, and Violet, taking a sudden fancy to him, and doubtless wishing to make a good impression on so important a person, flashed him her very nicest smile.

And so began a rather remarkable evening.

Tomorrow—Something Troubles Me

The Letters of Tessie and Joe

DEAR TESSIE:

The idea that you might get hold of a discharged German princess as a nurse for the baby isn't so bad as you seem to think. Of course it's true that she might demand all the comforts of the old ancestral halls, such as five o'clock tea and dessert at every meal, but what's that amount to when you consider the social polish that she'd rub on the baby? I'm a great believer in the value of first impressions and I know that personally if I'd been vassaged in early life by a German princess I'd be able to walk into any grocery store in the world right now and sell a couple of cases of Daisy Canned Soups through my ease of manner and royal bearing alone.

Naturally I'm speaking of stores that have never tried D. C. Soups, and on the following trip when I easing royalty into the same store again there would be a different story to tell, the difference laying in the fact that the second time would have an unhappy ending. In other words, a 14 karat first impression gives you a flying start, but there's no use trying to crank up a first impression more than once in the same place or it's liable to backfire on you. But if the baby takes after his father's side of the family and has diplomacy and quick wits to back up this good first impression with its ex-alien enemy polish, why he's liable to land in the White House where his troubles will just begin.

Or if you prefer a Russian princess, that might be even easier, because I understand that half the Russian nobility are going into service to keep sole and upper together. Russian leather joke. But for the love of Mike use the old bean and don't take in any of these Russian spies who are coming over here to throw vodka into the wheels of our government. I didn't raise my baby to be a Boishevik. I'd rather curse him in his fancy by bringing him up to inherit my Daley Canned Soup route. Not that I'm knocking D. C. Soups. Some things are so bad they're impossible to knock.

Well, love to you and the baby, and keep egging him on about that tooth or he'll forget we're expecting it and never come across with it.

JOE.

Heart and Home Problems

BY ELIZABETH THOMPSON.

Letters May be Addressed to Mrs. Thompson, In Care of the Gazette.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am upon the tips of your toes and throw your head back at the same time touching the backs of the hands overhead. As the arms slowly descend exhale from the lungs.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: Do you think I am a little girl of 14 old enough to take her 5-year-old sister to an afternoon picture show on a holiday?

MRS. E. T. H.

Yes, I think she is old enough. The parents, however, should use judgment in regard to the kind of a show they let their children attend.

WHAT SHALL I DO?

Answered by VIRGINIA PAGE

Kisses

Dear Miss Page—I know the man I go with loves me and intends to propose to me just as soon as he can. When he goes home he always wants to kiss me goodnight. What shall I do?—Y. M.

Shut the door—quick—first—and between you: Giving a man what he isn't entitled to, is no way to make him work for and earn it. V. M.

When he has found out that he "can't" ask you to marry him is time enough to say goodnight kiss, and the young man will then hasten to agree with you if he really loves you and is worthy of your love, etc.

Tell it over with him and see if I am not right. Ask him what he would think of you if you "kissed" every young man you know goodnight. And then when he says that's different (he will—they always do) tell him that you fall to see any difference, and that you think the only difference will come when you are engaged to the man.

He will agree with you—but then you mustn't kiss him goodnight as a favor, now, for agreeing. That is, of course, unless you are engaged, as you probably will be if he really does intend to propose to you. If not, the sooner you find it out the better, because you mustn't waste your kisses—you'll want one for Mr. Right when he does propose to you.

The Bridesmaid's Bouquets

Pearl Miss Page—Kindly settle our dispute. We'd like to know who is supposed to pay for the bridesmaid's bouquets.—L. P.

The groom pays for the bridesmaid's bouquets as well as for the bride's, and usually also sends a corsage bouquet to the bride's mother.

All inquiries addressed to Miss Page in the "What Shall I Do?" department will be answered in these columns in their turn. This requires considerable time, however, and the greater number received, so a personal or quicker reply is desired, a stamped and self-addressed envelope must be enclosed with the questions.

Gold and Silver Feature in Fabrics as Well as Price of Evening Gowns

WITH THE WOMEN OF TODAY

BY EDITH MORIARTY

The number of women receiving government appointments is growing daily. Washington has an ever increasing colony of women holding responsible government positions. The name applied to them now is the "women's cabinet." One of the most recent additions to this colony is Dr. Nora E. Dowell.

Dowell has been appointed assistant geologist in the United States Geological Survey. This is the first time that this position has ever been held by a woman. Dr. Dowell has long been prominent as a geology student and has done much research work. She is said to be ably fitted for her new post.

HELD BY SOVIETS

Mrs. Marguerite E. Harrison, a newspaper correspondent covering the Soviet situation in Russia, was reported here as hostage by government authorities in Moscow. Another report comes from Irkutsk, the Soviet trade headquarters in Siberia, that the first report is untrue. Mrs. Harrison is being held, it is reported, for the purpose of attracting attention to propaganda for the Soviet government to bring out the necessity of communication with that government for the adjustment of affairs dealing with spuds.

WOMEN AS JURORS

The question of permitting women to serve on all New York juries is up for discussion in that state. Mrs. Pauline C. Field, attorney and president of the Criminal Bar Association, has asked that the law prohibiting women from serving be amended by eliminating the word "male" from the qualifications which reads, "A juror must be a male citizen of the United States." Frederick Byrne, commissioner of jurors, approved the bill. The bill will make women subject to be summoned to court, and the regular fine if they do not obey the summons to serve.

TAKES ROOSEVELT'S PLACE

Mrs. Theodore Roosevelt, Sr.

played Santa Claus at the Cove Neck schoolhouse in Oyster Bay, N. Y., taking the place of the late Colonel Roosevelt, who for 25 years dressed like Santa Claus and handed out gifts and sweets to the youngsters. Dr. Richard Derby, husband of Edith Roosevelt, who has been a student at the school in the last few years, suggested Mrs. Roosevelt. This is her first appearance in that capacity since the death of her husband.

JOBLESS MEN URGED TO GO TO WOODS

MUCH WORK THERE

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Oshkosh—From an industrial standpoint, Oshkosh is in a good condition. Murt Malone, superintendent of the state free employment bureau, says in a detailed account of how the closing of several factories has induced men to the farms. He said:

"In common with other superintendents of employment agencies, I was asked recently by the state department to report as to conditions and make recommendations. I stated that I had used every effort possible to induce men to go to the woods, where there is going to be plenty of work. I have been quite successful in that effort. I have recommended that a home building in fall when all work gets slack."

Superior—Three men charged with helping up the gang that shot off a species in the daylight robbery Nov. 21 will come before Superior court Jan. 10. Arrested in Omaha late in November, John Bohmer, H. C. Miller and C. E. Stewart, charged with the crime, were returned to Superior after sensational extradition proceedings.

BLACK TRIMMING ON FLESH UNDIES IS

VERY LATEST FAD FROM FIFTH AVENUE

Miss Jean Tolley wearing the newest lingerie fad.

J.M. BOSTWICK & SONS

The first Printed Pattern in the History of Sewing

Printed instructions take the place of the circles and perforations in the old Pattern, making the New McCall Pattern infinitely simpler to use.

Directions for cutting and sewing are thus given so clearly and explicitly that women, who have never sewed before, will find in it a splendid sewing guide.

Parts are joined together by corresponding numbers, easy enough for a child to work with.

To women of busy households, the New McCall Pattern will stand with other modern inventions as an important time and money-saver.

The new patterns for February are now in stock.

Pattern Section Main Floor.

Black to trim lovely pink undies is the newest fad in the lingerie world. The photograph shows Miss Jean Tolley of New York wearing a new, undershirt made of flesh colored black trimmings and black silk tassels. She was on her way back to the miss-hand of black satin. The deep black band on the skirt is set of bows and there with tiny wreaths of rosettes and the bodice is daintily trimmed with black silk tassels.

She got us just stay in her room lots and lots. I tried to make her put on her pretty clothes and do as the other ladies did, and go out and walk and sit on the big plaza and dance, and then she'd sit in the chairs. She did, though, when we first came, and took me, and I just loved it. They were such beautiful ladies, with their bright eyes and their red cheeks and jolly ways; and their dresses were so perfectly lovely; all silks and satins and sparkly spangles, and diamonds and rubies and emeralds, and silk stockings and little bits of gold and silver.

And I saw two of them smoking. They had the cutest little cigarettes. (Mother said they were) in gold holders, and I knew then that I was seeing life-real life; not the stupid kind you get back in a country town like Andersonville. And I said so to Mother, and I was going to ask her if Boston would be the same. But I didn't get the chance. She just sort of sick I thought something had hurt her, and cried, "Good Heavens Baby!" (How I hate to be called "Baby!") Then she just threw some money on to the table to pay the bill and hurried me away.

It was after that that she began to stay in her room so much, and not take me anywhere except for walks at the other end of the city, where it was all quiet and stupid, and no music or lights, or anything. And though I teased and teased to go back to the pretty, jolly places, she wouldn't ever take me; not once.

Then by and by, one day, we met a little blackhaired woman with white cheeks and very big eyes. There weren't any springs driving and gold trimmings about her. I can tell you she was crying on a bench in the park, and Mother told me to stay back and watch the swans while she went up and spoke to her. Why do old folks always make us watch swans or read books or look into store windows or run around all the time? Don't they suppose we understand perfectly well what we're doing? But I was going to say something they don't want us to hear! Well, Mother and the lady on the bench talked and talked ever so long, and then Mother called me up, and the lady cried a little over me, and said, "Now, perhaps, if I had a little girl like that!" Then she stopped and cried some more.

We saw this lady real often, after that. She was nice and pretty and sweet, and I liked her, but she was always talking about her son, who was just so good for brother to be with her as it would have been for her to be with those jolly, laughing ladies that were always having such good times. But I couldn't make Mother see it that way at all. There are times when it seems as if Mother just couldn't see things the way I do. Honestly, it seems sometimes as if she was the cross-current and contradiction instead of me. It does.

Well, as I said before, I didn't like it very well out there, and I don't believe Mother did, either. But it's all over now, and we're back home packing up to go to Boston.

Everything seems awfully queer. Maybe because Father isn't here, for one thing. He wrote very polite and asked us to come to get our things, and he said he was going to New York or business some days, so Mother need not fear he should annoy her with his presence.

Then another thing. Mother's queer. This morning she was singing away at the top of her voice and running all over the house, picking up things she wanted; and seemed so happy. But this afternoon I found her down on the floor in the library crying as if her heart would break her head in Father's big chair before her eyes. But she had turned up in the middle of it, and said, no, no, she didn't want anything. She was just tired; that's all. And when I asked her if she was sorry, after all, that she was going to Boston to live, she said, no, no, no, indeed. She guessed she wasn't. She was just as glad as glad could be that she was going, only she wished Monday would hurry up and come so we could be gone.

And that's all. It's Saturday now, and we go just day after tomorrow. Our trunks are most packed, and Mother says she wishes she'd planned to go today. I've said good-bye to all the girls, and promised to write loads of letters about Boston and everything. They are almost as excited as I am; and I've promised, "Cross my heart and hope to die, that I won't forget Boston girls better than I do them; especially Curie Heywood, of course, my dearest friend."

Nurse Sarah is hovering around everywhere, asking to help, and pretending she's sorry we're going. But she isn't sorry. She's glad. I know she is. She never did appreciate Mother, and the things she still have on her way now. But the world could tell her a thing or two if I wanted to. But I shan't.

Dinner Stories

"I am trying to find my brother," said the Englishman timidly to the fierce looking person with a sheath knife on one side of his belt and a grandpa Desmond, and all the rest. So excited I can hardly wait. You see, Mother never let me have any fun, and I guess that's why I'm a very small child. I don't know why, but I guess Father didn't want me to go. It's safe to say he didn't, anyway. He never wants me to do anything hardly. That's why I suspect him or not wanting me to go down to Grandpa Desmond's. And Mother didn't go only once, in ages.

Now this will be the end. And when I begin again it will be in Boston. Only think of it—really, truly.

CHAPTER IV

When I Am Made

"Yes, I'm here. I've been here a week. But this is the first minute I've had a chance to write a word. I've been so busy just being here."

"Doubtless—kind of goody, goody chap?"

"Guess, I know him. He committed suicide three years ago."

"What? My brother committed suicide? Was he ill or in trouble, or what?"

"He called me a liar, stranger."

Frank Kipp was showing a stranger from San Francisco around the city in his high-powered car, and when pointing out the Auditorium, Frank said:

"This is our big Auditorium, and Joe Grib built the whole thing in six months."

"That's nothing," said the stranger from San Francisco, "we'll build a bigger one in three months."

Then Frank drove him out and they passed the beautiful water tower next to the new Otto Park house.

The stranger said: "What's that?"

"I don't know," said Frank. "That wasn't here day before yesterday."

Millionaires Indicted in Great Building Trust Ramifying Whole Nation

New York Legislative Committee Has Caught Many in the Net and Shown Conspiracy Involving Unions and Contractors.

BY ASSOCIATED PRESS. — The great financial institutions of New York state—banks and insurance companies—are about to be given searching inquiry by the joint legislative committee investigating the "building trust," which will soon begin an extended probe of the nation's business.

This committee, which has started the most amazing revelations regarding labor graft and building materials "rings," Samuel Untermyer, its counsel, has announced it will now seek to prove that the banks and savings banks have funds available to invest in mortgages and thus aid a building boom.

Three Grand Juries.

Three grand juries are diligently at work grinding out indictments on evidence furnished by the committee, but they are so far behind in their work that an additional panel is to be drawn.

More than 120 indictments have been returned against builders, material dealers and labor leaders, charging extortion, perjury, violation of the state anti-trust act, destruction of competition, and bribery, and contempt of the legislature.

One of the first results of the inquiry which began October 20, last, was the dismantling of the Cut Stone Contractors' Association and the Masons' Supply Bureau—organizations of employers admittedly operating in restraint of open competition.

Twenty-Nine Indictments.

Twenty-nine indicted stone contractors pleaded guilty to violation of the anti-trust act and were fined $2,000 each, when they turned state's evidence.

The contractors' "rings" in the limestone, marble, phonolite, metal lattice, wire mesh, and wrought pipe, heating and ventilating and fire extinguisher industry, which are alleged to have held up builders for millions of dollars, have collapsed.

John T. McTeeck, lawyer, and alleged promoter of several of the "rings," is under indictment for violation of the state anti-trust acts, and is held $10,000 bail. He is expected to have a trial on a good deal of evidence under which bids were matched and prices boosted by collective action.

Fifty-two members of the Master Builders' Association are among the most recent members of the alleged building trust to be indicted for violating the state anti-trust act, and are held in $5,000 bail each.

Sixteen members of the Employing Metal Furring and Lathing Association are held for extorting evidence, which they admit they had desired to keep out of the hands of the committee.

Twenty Business Men.

These wealthy business men are under indictment for contempt. They are John A. Philbrick, millionaire head of the Builders' Supply Bureau; and Joseph Penny, treasurer of the Bureau; and Wright D. Goss, the "brick king," who was actively interested in the association of Dealers in Masons' Building Supplies. Goss is also indicted for acting in restraint of trade.

Indictments were expected "open-in court" on brick, sand, lath and plaster, and marble combinations—which are alleged to have had a throttle hold on New York since 1916, and to have sent prices up from 100 to 300 per cent.

Now is the time that all true Americans should THINK.

Now is the time that all true Americans should render the greatest possible service to their country bringing our mighty ship of state safely through the angry waters of war conditions

What is possibly the greatest transitional period in the history of the World now exists in the United States. The "Ship of State" is going through the last dangerous rapids of war times and is approaching the calm and placid waters of normal times.

Today we are confronted with what seems to us high and exorbitant prices and for the past four years we have been crying "profiteer"; we will not buy anything we can do without. If we stop to analyze the situation, we realize we are in the wrong in not buying--there may have been profiteering. There is little or none at the present time and why let this Mighty Ship of State Become Wrecked Upon the Rock of "What Has Happened"?

The present stocks now on hand in the stores of the retailer were purchased six months to a year ago when prices were high. Dry Goods and Clothing stocks as well as many other lines are always purchased six months to a year in advance--Textile manufacturers do not manufacture a lot of materials that cannot sell any more than a farmer plants more grain than he can harvest.

If buying stops now, what will be the result?

It will mean that the merchant will not be able to buy his spring stock.

It will mean that the Manufacturer will have no demand for his goods.

It will mean that the great army of industrial workers--of office executives and clerks will have no work.

People who think that waiting to buy present day necessities will cause lower prices--or people who are waiting for some politician--some bank, or worse than all, some demagogue to come along with a panacea for idle times, should consider well before refusing to buy.

The burden must be borne by the consumer and merchant alike. The consumer loses a few cents a yard on yardage or a dollar perhaps on a garment--the retailer and manufacturer lose in selling goods at cost or nearly cost--the money it takes for clerk hire--for rent--for light--for heat--for insurance--for interest on money involved in equipment and stocks--for delivery--for taxes--which is termed "overhead."

Retailers who are now selling goods at market prices, receiving nothing for overhead, are facing a critical situation. Buyers who refuse to buy face a worse situation, for bankruptcies will take place--and who among us wants a panic of 1907?

Stop buying if you will--but take note of the increase of unemployed people, unemployed because there are no orders coming at his or her place of employment.

Extravagant or reckless spending is not to be encouraged--But what we should do is ordinary buying--go on with regular every day buying as usual. Forget the fact that there is a new political change, forget that there has been profiteering in manufacturing circles, in retailers' circles and in labor as well, if we are to get back to normalcy quickly.

It is a fifty-fifty proposition--consumers must see why they should assume a part of the responsibility and forget what has been if--the manufacturer profited, so did his workers--if the retailer profited, so did his clerks--if the manufacturer and his labor and the retailer and his help profited, so did the grocer, the producer, the landlord, the butcher, the baker, and the candlestick maker.

And even Mrs. X. Y. Z. who rented out rooms. Who has been exempt?

Actually, what do we mean by profiteering?

If our ship of state reaches the end of her journey safely, we must resume buying.
